

First,

- ✓ Whom do we fight?
 - ✓ Where do we fight?
 - ✓ How do we fight?
 - ✓ How do we get there?
- Determine whether the strategic environment requires change in military strategy and force design;
- Identify the new “rule set” (Time, Space, Lethality) and adjust assumptions.

Second, develop an appropriate military response (Strategy) linking strategic ends with operational means.

Military strategy must be congruent with:

- national culture;
- geography, and;
- scientific-industrial capacity.

or risk failure.

Third, devise a new operational concept suitable to the new environment.

- Identify the form warfare will take,
- Identify the probable missions;
- Develop the content (people and technology) required for the new organization.
- Perform the analysis to link strategy with concept and capabilities;
- Ensure capability integration and shared technological development across Service lines (R,D&A).

Fourth, New Leadership.

- Identify the right people
- Install them in power to ruthlessly implement the changes.

Fifth, within the available fiscal means reorganize and redeploy the force into:

- New Structure; (Extract savings from within to accelerate change);
- New Concept.

Desired Outcome: The 'about right' combination of organization, technology and human capital (dynamic, not static).
